6. HMS Warrior, Portsmouth Historic Dockyard

Portsmouth is the best location to 'Put the Wind in Your Sails' with something to suit all tastes and budgets.

With a perfect location on England's south coast, this island city is home to world-class attractions, fabulous shopping, amazing events and a fantastic cultural and creative offer. Add to this an array of evening entertainment, mouth-watering food and great places to stay, and you can see why Portsmouth is the top choice for a short break or day visit.

The iconic Spinnaker Tower is a must during your stay; enjoy the breath-taking panoramic views across Portsmouth and beyond. Stay on the waterfront with a visit to Gunwharf Quays to shop at over 90 premium designer outlets and eat at one of 30 cosmopolitan bars and restaurants.

A short walk takes you to Portsmouth Historic Dockyard, home to the finest maritime heritage in the world, including the historic ships HMS Victory, Mary Rose and HMS Warrior along with the National Museum of the Royal Navy, boat tours around Portsmouth Harbour and much more. The UK's only island city is rightly proud of its naval connections and is the base for the two newest Navy aircraft carriers, HMS Queen Elizabeth and HMS Prince of Wales - if you are lucky you may time your visit when one of these giant ships is arriving into or leaving port.

Portsmouth has great literary links. Discover more about the city's Sherlock Holmes connection at Portsmouth Museum and Art Gallery and visit the birthplace of the great author, Charles Dickens.

Stroll through the cobbled streets of Old Portsmouth and take a walk along the historic fortifications and new sea defences*.

From Old Portsmouth you can continue along the waterfront to Southsea, home to Henry VIII's castle and The D-Day Story museum.

Portsmouth is a year-round destination with a changing offer throughout the seasons. The packed events programme ensures there is always something extra to add in to any stay with plenty to choose from in the evenings as well as the day.

* The Southsea Coastal Scheme is the UK's largest local authority-led coastal defences project, worth more than £130M. When finished the new defences will stretch for around 3 miles from Old Portsmouth to Eastney, and help to reduce the risk of flooding to more than 10,000 homes and 700 businesses.

Three-day CITY BREAK

Only have a weekend to take in all the great things to see and do at the Great Waterfront City? Fear not, as our handy guide will guarantee you get the most out of three days in Portsmouth.

Begin your trip with a visit to the Spinnaker Tower. Not only is the attraction a true emblem of modern Portsmouth, it also provides the ideal vantage point to see everywhere you'll be going over the days ahead. From its viewing decks 100 metres above sea level you can take in the Portsmouth cityscape, look across to the South Downs, and see out to the Solent and the Isle of Wight. On a good day you can see for up to 23 miles across city, coast and country.

Once you've soaked up the view, head back down to earth and enjoy all there is to see and do at Gunwharf Quays. The waterfront outlet centre is home to more than 90 designer retail outlets, making it a must-visit destination for shopaholics looking to grab a bargain. As well as the shops you'll also find 30 bars, restaurants and coffee shops, not to mention a bowling alley, multiplex cinema, contemporary art gallery, Miniport, and plenty more besides – so you don't need to go far for that evening's food and entertainment either.

Alternatively, head over to the city centre, where you'll find a host of big-name shops, bars and cafés, as well as the indoor shopping centre Cascades.

Start your final day with a bracing stroll along Southsea Seafront. The fresh sea air and ever-changing coastal views are a year-round treat, and are the best way to work up an appetite for brunch at one of the many great eateries situated right along the seafront.

Once you've had your fill it's time to take in some of the other top sights located at the coast. Pop into Southsea Castle, the historic fortification from which Henry VIII watched the Battle of the Solent and the sinking of the Mary Rose. Then, head over to The D-Day Story, to hear the personal testimonies of those involved in the Normandy Campaign of World War II. You can also step on board the breath-taking LCT 7074 – the 59-metre-long Landing Craft Tank that transported troops and tanks across the channel – and is the only surviving craft of its kind from the war.

With that done, all that's left is to plan your journey home – and also your next visit to Portsmouth, to explore everything else the UK's only island city has to offer.

The next day it's off to Portsmouth Historic Dockyard. Here you'll find icons of British Naval history from across the centuries – all of which can be accessed with one Ultimate Explorer ticket. Go on board Nelson's HMS Victory and see up-close the work being done to preserve her for future generations to enjoy. Then, take a tour of HMS Warrior – once the world's fastest and most feared ship that was said to have made all other warships redundant the day she was launched (but never actually fired a shot in anger).

You can also visit the Mary Rose – flagship of Henry VIII's fleet and subject of an enormous marine salvage operation beamed live around the world. The restored hull now sits on display alongside the enormous cache of Tudor artefacts that were also brought back to the surface after over 437 years on the seabed.

Don't forget to head out on a harbour tour as well, to see the current crop of naval vessels from around the world in Portsmouth Harbour during your visit.

After all that exploring, why not settle into a show at one of the city's magnificent theatres? Both the New Theatre Royal and Kings Theatre were designed by eminent architect Frank Matcham – meaning the surrounds can be just as awe-inspiring as what's taking place on the stage.

And that's not all. We also have Portsmouth Guildhall, which welcomes some of the biggest names in music, comedy and dance, with a varied programme across its many rooms and spaces. There's also the iconic Wedgewood Rooms, where a whole host of future stars have cut their teeth before making the big time.

Treat yourself to a slap-up meal before the show of your choice, with all the above venues benefitting from top quality restaurants, pubs and bars within a short walk.

NAVAL GAZING

Go on board some of the world's most famous ships and explore the Royal Navy's past, present and future.

Portsmouth Historic Dockyard is the UK's premier destination for naval history, with unique pieces from tiny coins to huge Georgian ships, and wrecks spectacularly recovered from the seabed. Experience Horatio Nelson's flagship HMS Victory, Henry VIII's favourite ship the Mary Rose, the world's first iron-hulled warship HMS Warrior, and even more. See a genuine First World War monitor ship, HMS M.33, and see through the eyes of the workers at the Dockyard Apprentice exhibit.

The brand-new experience Victory Live: The Big Repair presents visitors with an unprecedented look behind the scenes at the work needed to repair a First Rate line-of-battle ship. Rotting planking will be removed from the hull and replaced with new oak; repairs made to the ship's structural framework; and she will be fully re-rigged, in a process lasting ten to fifteen years and costing £35million. Best of all visitors will be there every step of the way - seeing the work going on up close using special viewing areas constructed around the ship.

A new 4D immersive theatre experience, '1982 - Dive the Mary Rose', will open in spring 2023 to showcase the untold story of the finding, excavation, and recovery of the Mary Rose. Unseen footage will be brought to life through the smells, sounds and movement from the raising, with 3D glasses and CGI used to optimise the experience.

Visitors looking for something to get the pulse racing can put their speed and agility to the test at the newly reopened, fun-packed Action Stations. Take on the Commando Experience and get a game face on to experience training with the Royal Marines.

Also included in the Ultimate Explorer ticket are the two Gosport museums, Explosion! Museum of Naval Firepower, and the Royal Navy Submarine Museum. Investigate the only surviving British submarine from the Second World War and get up close to the powerful vessels of the clandestine Coastal Forces.

There's a ticket to suit everyone, with the very best value for money being the Ultimate Explorer, giving entry to all the attractions, including the Harbour tour, which provides unrivalled views of Britain's modern navy.

The different galleries around the dockyard, including one telling the story of ordinary serving men and women, offers something for those without their sea legs. Portsmouth Historic Dockyard really is the only place in the world to see the Royal Navy past, present and future.

A VIBRANT PAST

There's more history on show at the Eastney Engine Houses, where the grand Boulton & Watt steam engines that brought effective drainage and sanitation to Victorian Portsmouth are on display.

Head north and you'll find Fort Nelson - one of the many fortifications installed in and around Portsmouth by Lord Palmerston to protect the city (and wider country) from invasion. This former garrison and military prison now houses the big guns from the Royal Armouries' collection. So not only can you enjoy magnificent views out across the city from its hilltop location, you may also see a live firing too!

Back down at sea level is the impressive Portchester Castle which dates back to the 3rd century. The outer walls are the most complete Roman fortification north of the Alps, whilst inside you'll find a Norman Castle and well-tended grounds that are perfect for exploring or enjoying a summer picnic.

Portsmouth's history stretches back centuries - encompassing kings and queens, legendary naval battles, and a whole host of world-renowned authors. There really is history to explore around every corner.

The ideal place to start is Portsmouth Museum and Art Gallery, which tells the stories of the city and its inhabitants. See items from the world's largest collection of memorabilia relating to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who wrote the first two Sherlock Holmes novels in Southsea.

You'll also find paintings, ceramics and sculptures from the museum's own collection as well as loans from both national and international institutions.

EXPLORE SPICE ISLAND

The historic quarter of Old Portsmouth is a must-visit. You can escape through lamplit cobbled streets, explore some of the best pubs in Hampshire, and see creatives at work in their artists' studios.

Today, Old Portsmouth is one of the city's most desirable locations – a long way removed from centuries ago, when it was notoriously known as 'Spice Island'. Back then it welcomed some of the area's less salubrious characters and saw unsuspecting drinkers press-ganged into going on the next naval journey. Of course, you're now much more likely to find top quality seafood or enjoy wonderful coastal views than bump into any ne'er-do-wells.

Start your visit at the magnificent Portsmouth Cathedral. The church of St Thomas dates back to 1182 and has become known as 'the cathedral of the sea', not only through its proximity to the coast but also its numerous memorials to sailors and seafarers. The building may be historic, but a visit today uses some of the latest modern technology to bring the cathedral's stories to life.

A short walk along High Street brings you to the Hotwalls Studios, where artists and designers ply their trades in converted arches built into Old Portsmouth's fortifications. Browse and buy unique pieces across a whole range of mediums, from painting to sculpture, jewellery and textiles. You can also attend workshops and Open Studios events, to see the magic happen right in front of your eyes – or even have a try yourself.

The Hotwalls Beach is also a popular haunt; the enclosed area making it not just a wonderful sun trap, but also an ideal point from which to view the comings and goings of Portsmouth Harbour up-close.

Old Portsmouth's fortifications are well worth a visit, with the ramparts offering incredible views out over the city and across the Solent. You can stop off at the Round Tower, a Grade I-listed fort originally built in wood around 1418 before being replaced with the stone you see today in the 1490s.

If all that has worked up an appetite, you won't have to go far to get your fill of quality food and drink. Not only are some of Old Portsmouth's pubs the city's most historic, they're also some of the best-loved.

The Dolphin – located opposite Portsmouth Cathedral – purports to be the city's oldest pub still in operation, having been established back in 1716. Alternatively, head up to the Camber where you can enjoy hearty pub grub and some great local ales at the Still & West, Spice Island Inn or The Bridge Tavern – all of which are situated right at the water's edge.

If all this coastal living has you fancying some seafood, you have plenty of choice. At Fish Portsmouth you can pick up the best catches – with an enormous selection to choose from, freshly landed that morning. Or, if you'd rather have someone else do the work for you, pop across the road to Abarbistro, where quality seafood is available alongside bistro classics (and some excellent wines too).

CULTURE by the COAST

Culture buffs rejoice, there's a whole host of great things to see and do on your next visit to Portsmouth – from art galleries to museums, theatres, festivals, and plenty more besides.

To begin, why not take a tour of Portsmouth's literary past? Some of the world's most famous authors have called Portsmouth home at some point in their lives – and left their own indelible mark upon the city.

The most famous is Charles Dickens, who was born in a humble terraced house on what is now Old Commercial Road. The home has been transformed into a museum, containing many of Dickens' personal possessions.

Portsmouth is also home to the world's largest collection of memorabilia relating to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle – the man behind world-renowned 'consulting detective' Sherlock Holmes. A host of fascinating items from the collection are on display at Portsmouth Museum and Art Gallery – itself just a few minutes' walk from the place where Doyle first came up with the idea for his most enduring character.

Other famed writers with a link to the city include HG Wells, Rudyard Kipling and Michelle Magorian.

Portsmouth's literary links are celebrated every year at BookFest, where visitors can enjoy lively talks, workshops and readings from some well-known guest speakers.

The storytelling tradition is very much alive and well at the city's theatres – where you can see touring shows straight from the West End, as well as some of the biggest names in music and comedy. The Kings Theatre in Southsea and New Theatre Royal in the city centre regularly welcome household names, whilst the smaller Groudlings Theatre – situated within a magnificent Georgian building – features community productions and stars of the future.

Portsmouth Guildhall is the city's largest venue – welcoming huge stars on their national and international tours. It was even where Pink Floyd gave the debut live airing to their seminal album The Dark Side of the Moon. More recently the building's main auditorium has been supplemented by the Guildhall Studio and The Box, to provide even more venue space for all sizes of act – meaning you have an even greater chance of finding something you like on your next visit.

If you'd rather sit back and enjoy something on the silver screen, there's plenty of choice – and not just in terms of the film you want to watch. In addition to the big-name multiplexes, Portsmouth has the independent No. 6 Cinema (at Portsmouth Historic Dockyard) and Southsea Cinema (on Palmerston Road). Here you'll find some of the latest indie releases, as well as screenings of classics from yesteryear.

There's art of a different kind to enjoy at Aspex Portsmouth. The contemporary art gallery, located within the Gunwharf Quays complex, hosts an ever-changing programme of displays that enlighten, engage and enrich. You may also see some big names there, as those who were championed by the gallery in their formative years come back to repay the favour.

As well as all the cultural attractions listed above there are a great many festivals, pop-ups and one-off events taking place all year round. There's Victorious Festival, which brings some of the biggest names in music to Southsea Common every summer, and PortsFest (formerly Portsmouth Festivities), where live music, talks and workshops combine for a celebration of all things cultural.

Be sure to follow Portsmouth Creates, the organisation that is behind the We Shine Portsmouth light festival, as well as many other craft markets and other ventures taking place right across the city.

The GREAT OUTDOORS

2023 is the Year of the Coast, so what better way to mark the occasion than to head outside for the enormous variety of sights and sounds to enjoy at the seaside?

- 1. Milton Common
- 2. Millennium Promenade, Old Portsmouth
- 3. Shipwrights Way, Hilsea
- 4. South Parade Pier, Southsea seafront

Portsmouth's position as an island city has inextricably linked it to the coast. The city has sea air built into its very DNA, and much of what there is to enjoy outdoors here can be found right along the water's edge.

To begin, how about a promenade along Southsea seafront? For miles on end you can enjoy sea views to one side and open parkland to the other as you take the flat path from Old Portsmouth to Eastney.

In fact, if you wanted to stretch this to its extreme you could take a walk around the perimeter of Portsea Island (along pathways that stretch for around 15.5 miles, if you were wondering) and never be more than half a mile from the coast - and often right alongside it.

The Portsmouth section of England's Coastal Path has now been finished, with the Calshot to Gosport and Gosport to Portsmouth sections (totalling some 52 miles, or 84km) having officially opened in 2022. As the National Trails agency itself says, the walk provides huge variety even just in Portsmouth alone, passing through residential, retail, recreational and industrial areas - as well as Sites of Scientific Special Interest (SSSI).

In addition to this exciting new development we have all the great outdoor areas that have brought visitors back time and again for years.

Southsea Common is the huge expanse of open parkland located right along the coast. Here you can enjoy summer picnics or winter walks, or even treat yourself to a BBQ (in the designated areas).

The area is great for ball games, whether you want an impromptu kickabout with friends or prefer to visit the tennis and beach volleyball courts. The area is also home to Southsea Skatepark, which welcomes visitors on a pay-as-you-go basis, and hosts Roller Discos during summer - which are always great fun.

Alternatively, head over to Milton Locks and Common for a more relaxed affair. Here you can explore the many walkways and paths around the city's eastern edge, then go wildlife spotting in the calm, shallow waters (with animals here including starlings, house sparrows, copper butterflies, oystercatchers and sea purslane).

Finally, head off the island to Portsdown Hill for a breath-taking view looking out over Portsmouth and the surrounding areas.

Exciting new development in 2023

Plans are taking shape to create a new urban Linear Park, stretching right across the very top of Portsea Island - connecting the west of the city to the eastern edge. As well as providing enhanced cycling and walking facilities, the heart of the development will feature the Hilsea Leisure Park, a high-quality destination including children's dry and wet play; water activities (such as wakeboarding); high quality food and drink; interaction with the natural and heritage environment through viewing platforms; and a crucial redevelopment of the much-loved Hilsea Lido as a cornerstone attraction.

Follow our social channels and check the Visit Portsmouth website for updates on the development of the Linear Park during 2023.

world's leading 10 mile running event. This fast, flat course is ideal for setting PBs, whilst also taking in some of the city's best scenery - from the beautiful seafront to Nelson's iconic HMS Victory.

With miles of beautiful seafront promenade, Southsea is a runner's paradise, where you can train with a sea-breeze on your back and ever-changing views across the Solent towards the Isle of Wight and Hayling Island. The Peter Ashley Activity Centres are located in the historic environments of Fort Purbrook and Fort Widley on Portsdown Hill. Activities to pre-book include horse riding, archery, bush craft, mountain biking, climbing wall, orienteering, rifle shooting and laser tag. Book a family adventure day and learn a new skill.

Portsmouth boasts two 18-hole golf courses - Portsmouth Golf Centre and Portsmouth Golf Course. Both are available for pay and play, offering outstanding views and affordable sessions on great courses.

The promenade along Southsea seafront is ideal for in-line and roller skating, whatever your age. It's also worth zipping down to Southsea Skatepark on the seafront, which is home to international-standard ramps, or check out the new Undercover Skatepark in the city centre - ideal on less clement days. In winter enjoy skating on real ice in front of Portsmouth Guildhall.

When the weather's good you can't beat Southsea's seafront. It offers miles of pebble beaches to explore and gigantic green spaces where you can let off some steam and enjoy the sea air. There are also tennis courts, adventure mini golf, a pitch 'n' putt green, play parks and beach volleyball courts to keep you entertained.

SOMETHING for EVERYONE

Southsea sits perfectly at the bottom of the island of Portsea and encompasses miles of beach, wide open green spaces, myriad attractions, museums, activities, shopping and food and drink - the perfect place to include on any visit to the great waterfront city. This is also where most of the larger city events take place on the vast green open spaces, with free music every weekend throughout the summer and the enormous Victorious Festival over the August bank holiday. In late summer and autumn events take a more sporting theme with kite surfing and the Great South Run - one of the best 10-mile races in the world.

As if this wasn't enough, Southsea seafront is getting a much-deserved facelift in the form of a multimillion-pound project to create sea defences to protect the city while preserving its unique heritage. The work on these essential defences also offers the chance to make improvements to much of the seafront, so it is an even better place to walk, cycle, skate or run - or to just sit with fish and chips and watch the world go by! There is plenty to watch as well, with an ever-changing seascape of yachts, ferries, hovercraft, cruise ships, cargo ships and naval warships - including, if you are lucky, a glimpse of one of the two Royal Navy Queen Elizabeth-class aircraft carriers based in Portsmouth.

THE D-DAY STORY
PORTSMOUTH

The very fabric of war.

The Overlord Embroidery depicts D-Day and the Battle of Normandy, telling the story of sacrifice and heroism with 34 panels showing scenes in over 50 fabrics. Experience the embroidery at The D-Day Story and discover the personal stories behind this epic day. thedaystory.com

TALES of HEROES and KINGS

The D-Day Story

The D-Day Story is a must see during any visit. The story of this momentous moment in World War Two is told in three distinct parts.

The visit starts on-board the enormous LCT 7074, the last surviving Landing Craft Tank that took part in the D-Day landings. For months the ship carried troops, supplies and up to ten tanks across the channel. It played a vital role in helping liberate Europe.

Following a multi-million-pound restoration project by the National Museum of the Royal Navy and funding from the National Lottery Heritage Fund, LCT 7074 has been restored to its former glory.

Sound effects, recreated crew quarters, and Sherman and Churchill tanks bring the experience of being on board to life.

The second part of the visit is inside the museum itself. Here, you find out about the planning of D-Day and how those in charge made crucial preparation decisions on when and where to cross the channel. Next is 'D-Day Landings and the Battle of Normandy'. The audio-visual displays show what it was like to be on a landing craft and give a compelling insight into the thoughts and feelings of those onboard.

The third part of the visit is the grand finale - the spectacular Overlord Embroidery and Legacy Gallery. The impressive 83-metre-long embroidery, longer than the Bayeux Tapestry, with 34 extraordinary hand stitched panels, was created to commemorate people who took part in D-Day. You can also hear the Veterans' personal stories as they reflect on their wartime service.

The museum is open 10am-5pm, seven days a week. To find out more and to purchase tickets go to thedaystory.com

Henry VIII's Southsea Castle

Just south of The D-Day Story sits Southsea Castle, built in 1544 by Henry VIII to guard against enemy ships and reportedly from where he watched his favourite warship, the Mary Rose, sink at the Battle of the Solent.

The full castle visitor offer is available each year from April to October and includes the castle keep with an overview of its history, the ramparts with great views across the Solent to the Isle of Wight, the shop and delicious Courtyard café and restaurant.

The Courtyard stays open during the winter months for food and drink all year round. The on-site micro-brewery opens on occasional weekend days for off-sales.

INDEPENDENT ISLAND

Try something a little different and explore the independent side of this island city.

1. Strong Island Clothing Co.
2. Portsmouth Distillery Co.
3. Bored of Southsea
4. Hotwalls Studios

Portsmouth has long had a fiercely independent streak – perhaps due to its position as an island city. This is evidenced in our distinct culture and character, which attracts visitors not just from around the UK but across the world. You’ll find much of this independence centred around Southsea, offering you something different on your next visit that you won’t find anywhere else – be that quirky boutique shops, exceptional restaurants serving top-quality local produce, or makers and creatives working out of truly unique settings. You won’t have to go far to find independence when it comes to Portsmouth’s craft beer scene. There are a whole host of breweries creating their own modern takes on classic ales – providing you with something truly different to enjoy on your trip or to take home with you.

There’s Southsea Brewing Co. – probably the only microbrewery working out of a 16th century fortification, as well as the locally renowned Staggeringly Good, Urban Island, Makemake and Irving breweries. Whatever your tastes and preferences, you’re sure to find plenty to enjoy. If spirits are more your thing, perhaps a visit to the Portsmouth Distillery Co. should be on the cards.

The expert team behind the distillery has been making top-quality rum for years, and more recently added gin to the repertoire as well. There’s even one that lies halfway between the two; Forum, a botanical rum. As well as the excellent drinks themselves, the distillery is worth a visit all on its own, with it being based out of Fort Cumberland – a Georgian artillery fortification now owned by Historic England. There’s more indie uniqueness to explore in the shops of Portsmouth. Rose Clover, for example, is an independent houseplant jungle, where you can pick up plants and pots for your home – whilst also getting the best advice on how to keep them surviving and thriving. Also in Southsea is the Strong Island Clothing Co., which emerged out of the media company with which it shares a name. From the shop on Marmion Road you can buy t-shirts, bobble hats, waterproof jackets, sunglasses and a whole host more – to be sure you’re not in the same threads as everyone else back home. For footwear, you can do a lot worse than Bored of Southsea on Albert Road. The long-established skate shop stocks some of the most in-demand limited edition sneakers, as well as boards and other skating gear. Then, of course, once fully equipped you can head down to Southsea Skatepark.

If you’d prefer to rest up with a hot drink and sweet treat, give Hideout Coffee Co. a try. They sell indulgent and freshly prepared doughnuts in a range of unique and delicious flavours. Alternatively, check out André’s for some lunch or picnic essentials. It’s Portsmouth’s oldest independent sandwich shop and has built up a formidable reputation for quality in that time. Perhaps the centre of independent Portsmouth lies at the Hotwalls Studios. Here, 13 old archways built into historic fortifications have been transformed into artists’ studios, where you can see designer-makers at work and purchase items directly. It also hosts frequent markets and welcomes guest artists across the year.
