HAMPSHIRE'S HISTORIC CASTLES

Hampshire has diverse range of castles, with so much history dating back from hundreds of years ago.

- Built in 1544, Hurst Castle is one of Henry VIII's fortresses, located on the spit of land from Milford-On-Sea. Hurst is typical of the King's forts, with very thick walls designed to fend off enemy fire. It is among the best preserved of Henry VIII's castles.
- Located on Calshot Spit, Calshot Castle was built using the stone from Beaulieu Abbey, this was one of many of Henry VIII's forts to defend England's coast from foreign invaders.
- The Roman fort of Portchester Castle was built 1,700 years ago and is the most impressive and best-preserved of the Roman 'Saxon Shore' forts.
- Southsea Castle was built by Henry VIII in 1544 as a fortification. It was only just finished when Henry's flagship, the Mary Rose, sank just in front of its walls. It was also a military prison and a lighthouse was constructed in the 1820s, which is still in use today.
- Wolvesey Castle or Bishops Waltham Palace is home to the bishops of Winchester and is one of the most important Norman palaces in England.
- Dating back to 1067, the Great Hall in Winchester is all that remains of the medieval castle. Henry III was born at the castle and added the Great Hall.
